COMMUNITY SERVICE AND TEACHER DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Community Service Worker and Teacher Development Program (CSTDP) is a hybrid education and training program designed for people interested in careers in community service and/or education, but may face barriers to employment and need extra assistance to succeed. In this year-long program, participants will learn the fundamentals of child development, how children process information and learn, group supervision and management, de-escalation and conflict resolution techniques. Participants will also learn Indigenous perspectives, wellness, communication, advocacy, and leadership development. Practicums will be held with various Winnipeg school divisions so participants can gain immersive work experience.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Graduates will be qualified to work in a wide range of Education and Community Service Sectors, providing meaningful and culturally relevant support. Starting wages for graduates currently range from $16.00-$19.00/hour. After the initial one-year Community Service and Teacher Development Program, graduates may have the opportunity to continue on to enroll in a community-based Bachelor of Education program based out of Neeginan College of Applied Technology. The Bachelor of Education is a five-year integrated program.
