

5 ways to honour National Truth and Reconciliation Day

1. Wear Orange. Wearing Orange on September 30th is to acknowledge and witness the truths behind the residential school system
2. Take a moment of silence in honour of those impacted by residential schools, their families and the children who never made it home
3. Watch, listen, or read about residential schools and indigenous culture.
4. Learn about traditional lands you live or work on, and the Nation(s) who have called it home since time immemorial
5. Attend an event in recognition of Truth and Reconciliation

Pimootayowin is an Anishinaabemowin word meaning "journey", a word chosen by Ian Ross who explains: "The creation of new art is often described as a journey, so too, our lives. In any journey, we often don't know what lies ahead but we can emerge enriched by them."Led by Governor General Award-winning playwright Ian Ross, the Pimootayowin Creators Circle supports the creation and development of new plays by Manitoba-based Indigenous artists and culminates with this free play-reading festival.
